What's the BUZZ?!?!

This year during Saturday lunch we are going to try something a little different. Nannypalooza is all about trying to learn from each other. We are going to have open discussions at lunchtime on a variety of topics. You will be assigned a table on your nametag. On the table will be a container with a wide variety of questions in it. Take turns pulling out questions and discussing. We want each attendee to share their thoughts, and ask questions. These discussions are intended to be an open forum, where there is not right or wrong answer and every opinion is valued. The topics are of a wide variety and we are hoping that you will find a topic or two that you are really passionate about!

Why do we do this?

The idea behind Nannypalooza is that there is place where the average nanny can go, where she/he can learn new things, meet new friends and colleagues, and pay an affordable price for this. In order to make sure that all nannies feel welcome we have built into the schedule a few events that encourage participants to really interact with others. Also we feel that we all have something to learn, and that we all have things we can teach! Agency owners and nannies that are working in the field everyday are the best teachers of what it is like to deal with these situations. There are plenty of times that we look to each other for advice and support. This exercise is designed to let that happen here.
